

Lewis University College Success Program Receives $45,000 AT&T Contribution

August 5, 2016

Incoming Lewis University students connected to a network that is building a better tomorrow on July 29 as AT&T presented $45,000 to the Lewis University Success program.

More than 60 Lewis University students are currently enrolled in the Success Program that provides first-year college students with a summer bridge opportunity, peer mentoring experiences, academic support services and scholarships.

“At AT&T we are empowering students everywhere to reach their highest potential. Through Aspire, AT&T passed the $250 million mark on our plan to invest $350 million in education between 2008-2017. We want to help build a better future for the students and help them succeed,” said Jeff Adducci ’92, director of external affairs at AT&T.

The AT&T contribution will be used for textbook stipends, scholarships, an updating and redesign of the program curriculum, enhanced training for Peer Mentors, and new experiential learning opportunities for students. Read more
